Damian, this just adds cost and programme uncertainty. There are critical timings around the Autumn which this eats into. As I understand it, Agency officials have seen and are content with the report to CEC Council, due to go public tomorrow. Is it not safe to assume that the Council will approve based on soundings to date. And is it not safe to assume that the Minister will then be in a position, appropriately caveated, to support the funding package in principle. If someone queries why the notice is extant before the formality of these decisions, it can be properly explained as good process to minimise cost. Therefore – can you reconsider and permit publication tomorrow once the paper from the Council is in the public domain.

If the answer is no, are we able to assume that the content of the OJEU as presently drafted is acceptable and can go without further alteration, whenever you approve its release. If there is still any difficulty with the content, who will let us know the detail and when.

Yours in frustration. But best wishes for 2006 anyway.

Regards
Graeme

Ian / Stewart

Thanks for this response.

Taking account of the present situation and having discussed this with Damian, our view is that we should hold back the issue of the OJEU meantime, certainly until after key decisions are made on 26th January.

Having discussed this with Stewart McGarrity, we appreciate the additional delay that this will cause but believe that the best interests of the project are served via a little more caution on this matter at this time.

Damian & John,

The attachment is the final form Infraco OJEU which is final subject to your comments and closure of the codes tomorrow.

It is important to keep the procurement process on track by releasing the OJEU – remember that the Trams OJEU is already out.

This is the final OJEU in the set as you know.

I am not in the office tomorrow so comments to Stewart McGarrity please.

Ian

Please find attached the updated draft of the OJEU Notice for Infraco. We are adding in a few additional CPV Codes for items such as ticket machines and these will be included in the version of the Notice which is submitted to the OJ.

Please let me know of any changes which tie/Scottish Executive require and I shall then progress.

Regards
Sharon
