Dear All,

Just as a heads up – it is important that next week we review the process with the Scottish Power agreement to determine the reasons why we didn't get this settled without a last minute stooshie (involving me today and Alasdair Sim at the last knockings too!) and what can be done to improve the effectiveness of the process going forward. This will be a long, long 4 years delivering this project if every agreement is as difficult to put away as this one (and others before it).

Colin,

There have been discussions this morning I believe involving Andrew Holmes, Willie Gallagher and Jim Inch. Hopefully there is now the prospect of you being given authority to sign the agreement based upon the information and advice to hand which is encapsulated in the attached two documents – a note prepared by DLA on CEC's liability under Utility Agreements and Willie Gallagher's letter to Andrew Holmes of yesterday on the same subject. For the avoidance of doubt I also confirm that CEC will be an insured party under the Owner Controlled Insurance Programme.

Assuming we do indeed have progress here can you please revert back to Alasdair Sim when the documents are signed so that our people can distribute. I understand that must be today?

Please call me on [REDACTED] if I can do anything else at all to facilitate this.

Stewart,

I have been directed to you in an effort to resolve the issue surrounding the conclusion of the agreement among TIE, the Council and Scottish Power. This follows upon your telephone conversation with Alan Squair at 10.20 hours. I note from said conversation that Andrew Fitchie is not available today.

Attached hereto is a note of the outstanding concerns expressed by the Council Solicitor. In light of the fact that TIE has its own solicitors, DLA, and recognising that DLA cannot directly advise the Council, the most appropriate way forward would appear to be for you to seek immediate advise from your solicitors in order that you can respond to the Council.

Kind regards,

Colin MacKenzie
